THE EVENING STAR. WASHINGTON: SATURDAY May 3, 1890

CROSBY S. NOYES..... THE EVENING STAR has the fullest Local Circulation of any Newspaper in the World, and as an Advertising Medium is worth more than all the other papers published in Washington.

Owing to lateness in application and delay in furnishing copy, several important business announcements, for which space in today's paper was desired, do not appear. This omission is greatly regretted, but it is no fault of THE STAR, which makes every effort to accommodate all customers. The size and number of its pages cannot, however, be increased at a moment's notice, nor can the force of any office do two or three times its allotted work in a given period. Those, therefore, who wish to avail themselves of the unequaled advantages of THE STAR'S columns as an advertising medium, and especially those of Saturday's mammoth editions, should make applications for space and send in their copy as long in advance as possible. Otherwise it is almost impossible to prevent disappointments.

than of fact. Let's try.

With a bare quorum and in the absence of several of the warmest defenders of the interests of the capital against corporate encroachment the House District committee has approved the Atkinson bill. This measure legalizes the illegal side-tracks of the Baltimore and Potomac road and confirms its illegal occupation of the streets and public spaces crossed and used by these tracks. The letter of the District attorney which preceded the indictments against the road for this unauthorized use of public property gives a long list of the reservations and streets appropriated. The commissioner of public grounds had made frequent and forcible complaint in official reports of the seizure of four reservations. The Attorney General of the United States in a vigorous letter pushed the proceedings against the road to the point of indictment. These indictments now sleep. It is proposed that the United States shall condone the offenses for which the road is indicted, and reward it for appropriating property which did not belong to it by presenting to it the property in question. The bill also proposes to single out this road from the common carriers of the District for another valuable privilege by delegating to the Commissioners for its benefit alone the power of Congress to authorize deviations from its chartered line. And, finally, the bill gives the road power to condemn property for its uses without the geographical limitation upon this power for which the people have contended. This pardon for past offenses, this new donation of public land, and this fresh gift of exclusive privileges are for the benefit of a road which has already received free right of way over the public streets and the loan of a free station site on the public reservation, and which has shown its appreciation of this generosity by seizing public property not granted to it, by illegally using the public streets as freight and storage depots, by killing people on surface tracks with trains running at an illegal rate of speed or at crossings left unguarded in violation of law, and by steadily imitation, to those whose trained eye and cultivated resisting and defeating every effort in behalf of taste can see the art and beauty in the fairy-like stitches the public to secure an improvement of the thecobweb-like designs of the finest Handkerchiefs procharacter of its occupation. The people have duced in the world. We repeat we shall offer Monday asked and now ask relief from the no-thoroughfare belt of surface tracks which isolate the important section of the city that includes the river front, and restoration of the reservations seurs. to the public uses for which they were intended | * We have a good reason for reserving the right to and from which they have been diverted. They | sell but one Handkerchief to each customer. are aware from past experience that unless they secure these things in connection with and as consideration for the concessions to the road they will never get them at all. The difficulties of a removal of grade crossings for a short distance on a through passenger route, an improvement which is being rapidly accomplished in our large cities, seem to appall some District legislators when proposed for the capital. They wheeze and puff at the very suggestion of this vast labor and fear that the thing is impracticable. But a project for the benefit of the road, which merely sacrifices the interests of the District and gives away for nothing concessions which should be the price of public relief cannot be hurried through Congress too fast.

When immigration was stimulated only in the United States it was satisfactory to Americans. Now that it is stimulated by the countries of Europe, which seek to throw the support of their lepers and hopeless paupers on other nations, it is not so desirable. Ours is still a land of refuge for all oppressed people. They come and help themselves and thus help the community into which they merge themselves. But when they are encouraged to go from their old homes because they are too worthless to be of any service to anybody there, or because disease has marked them for its own, then the republic protests and refuses to submit.

Will the Senate ever adopt the previous question? This query has been made many times and has usually been answered in the 35-cent Damask Ginghams......29 cents negative. The Senate is a body which is some-times, with all its dignity, more partisan than the House. But as regards the privileges of its individual members it is disposed to subor-Blue, Pink. The Senate will probably maintain free-and-easy debate and let election and other | Tan and Golden Brown, Light and Dark Old Rose, party measures take care of themselves.

The debate on the subject of international copyright, although something of a surprise as to the attitude of some of the debaters, was not half so surprising as the vote on the bill which followed. That some of the most cultivated men in the House should be misled by appeals to misplaced sympathies and by a blind following of misleading data is remarkable.

Our own cowboy marquis-De Mores of Dakota-wants to make the Duc d' Orleans King of France and is about to get himself into a worse state than the Duc is in. De Mores had better come home and go west. Scotch Church disestablishment is coming, as indicated by the House of Commons vote of last evening-218 to 256, a negative majority much less than was to be expected from the present complexion of the House. What would the democratic party do if

IF YOU A TRAVELING GO AND WANT A TRUNK. What we mean by a trunk is NOT four pieces of commen board loosely joined together, painted fancily to catch the eye and gotten up with all conceivable style, which will all collapse the first time that invincible "baggage amasher" gets his work in on it. That's not the kind of a trunk we sell you. What we sell you will stand all the knocking about and rough handling that all the backage men in the United States can give it. Made to wear. We know HOW they are made—made to our order-with all the modern improvements known to trunk makers.

All of our Trunks have patent swing trays; does away with lifting the heavily laden tray out of trunk every time you wish to get an article out of the bot-tom of your trunk. PRICES—Well, there's a good part of your RAIL-ROAD FARE saved if we sell you your Trunk. We buy in quantities and sell in quantities, the reason of lower prices than trunk desiers. POPULAR SHOPPING PLACE.

"PICTURE" VESTS.

We've been particularly care'ul in the selection of our White and Fancy Vest patterns. We see lots shown around us we threw toone side. Wouldn't have them-because we knew you wouldn't wear any such

Some of the rarest patterns were made up in stingy quantities. Nobody coul, have more than a very few. We took all that came the way.

Placing orders the sze of ours we had a right to prohibit the showing of our selections to others. Naturally we enforced that right. You won't see a twin vest to yours onsvery other man you meet in the street. That's worn something-Because a Fancy Vest is more or lessonspicuous and the resemblance couldn't pass unnedced.

We had access to the London sample cards and bought as they pleased us-in contrasts to the home patterns. Besides these facy patterns-in Wash and Worsteds -there are the Eain White in Pique, Duck, Marseilles, etc. We are shwing them all in single and double breasted effect-and at prices there isn't a house in town that reages low enough to quote with us.

You want at eye out for the fit, as well as the patterns-Oursiave that virtue-rurs.

LIVERIES Those if our patrons who have changed their servant's Liveries must pardon us if we refer to this subjet with some frequency for a short time to come. Ome of you are less thoughtful and need the matter rought to your attention. It'll strike you very feetbly some day when you see your turnout beside our neighbor's, how faded and shabby your coachuan's old coat is looking. Then you'll want a new me and want it in a burry. Come in as much of a rue as you like. We keep a complete stock on hand all as time-Not alone for the coachman-but for any of your male servants-from the butler to the cook, fe're suppliers to the leading social and official buseholds of Washington-and on your afternoon by you are of our dressing. Yours can look as well. SAKS AND COMPANY.
